JEREMY BRECHER APPOINTED SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT TECHNOLOGY & CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER OF SECURITAS ELECTRONIC SECURITY, INC.

UNIONTOWN, OHIO – Securitas Electronic Security, Inc.(formerly Diebold Security) announced today that Jeremy Brecher has been appointed Senior Vice President Technology & Chief Information Officer. As SVP Technology & CIO, he is responsible for Securitas Electronic Security's (SES) enterprise information technology long-term strategy and the applications and technology strategy for business operations. He is also responsible for the development of next generation cloud and managed customer services. Brecher will be leading the IT infrastructure strategy, development and deployment project as Securitas ES transitions from Diebold to a business unit within the Securitas family of companies.

Prior to Securitas, Brecher served as Vice President Technology for electronic security at Diebold, Incorporated. Brecher joined Diebold in 2004, when Diebold acquired Antarcom, a top tier regional systems integration company. He has 20+ years of technology management, infrastructure and networking experience in the security industry. An industry recognized subject matter expert in emerging security and cloud technology, Jeremy strives to continually enhance the Securitas ES suite of services to maximize flexibility, functionality and cost efficiency for SES customers.

Brecher holds a bachelor's degree from Queens College in Queens, New York. He currently chairs the SIA Cloud, Mobility and IoT Subcommittee and sits on the advisory boards for TechSec Solutions and the Connected Security Expo.

"Jeremy has the expertise, vision and proven leadership to pioneer security technology and services advancements for our customers," said Tony Byerly, president, Securitas Electronic Security. "He is an effective strategist with keen insights into the future direction of the security industry. In his expanded role, Jeremy will deliver technology innovations for our customers, while building out a world class, state-of-the-art systems framework for our business."
